

TENTH ACRE FARM

SKILLS FOR THE PRODUCTIVE HOME

ABOUT ME

I find great joy in the discovery and mastery of skills in organic vegetable gardening, front yard edible landscaping, permaculture gardening, from-scratch cooking, and preserving homegrown produce. I love tinkering around the homestead in my free time.

My greatest passion is inspiring and encouraging others to become producers in their own yards—no matter the size. As the author of The Suburban Micro-Farm: Modern Solutions for Busy People, I help beginner and expert gardeners alike take their homegrown produce from garden to table.

ABOUT MY BLOG

In 2013, I founded my garden and homesteading blog, Tenth Acre Farm (TenthAcreFarm.com) as a way for me to share my experiences in growing, cooking, and preserving our food.

I focus on writing exceptionally useful content that includes time - and cost - saving solutions.

My demographic is largely weekend homesteaders and retirees who want tools, tips, and how-to's that help them manage a garden on a busy schedule without being overwhelmed—no matter if they have a single raised bed or edible landscape on a small property or a 1/4-acre micro-farm in the suburbs.
